U.S. Jets, Red MIGs In Dogfights

'Loyalty Day' Sponsored By VFW Across Nation

From Associated Press

Striking again at targets near Hanoi, American war planes fought six duels with defending MIGs over North Vietnam Friday and U.S. Air Force pilots claimed two kills.

The F105 Thunderchiefs ran into heavy missile and MIG defenses as they attacked railroad car repair shops 24 miles northeast of the center of Hanoi and a highway 12 miles west of the Red capital.

The U.S. command said two MIG 17s were downed but made no mention of any American losses.

Radio Hanoi claimed four U.S. planes were shot down.

WESTMORELAND TALK

In Washington, critics of administration policy doubly predicted escalation of the Vietnam fighting while supporters foresaw a stiffening resolve as the result of Gen. William C. Westmoreland's address to Congress and briefings of governors and members of Congress.

In reply to administration critics who said that Gen.

Westmoreland was brought to the U.S. as a propaganda tool by President Johnson, the Associated Press said that it invited Westmoreland to appear at its annual meeting on its own initiative.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda branded Gen. Westmoreland as a "vulture" and said his speeches in the U.S. were attempts to disguise what is called "the disgrace of America."

Back home, Americans across the nation take part today in Loyalty Day parades, including a march down Fifth Avenue in New York, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who are sponsoring the programs, urged that the events this year be dedicated.

Drunk Test Gets Senate Approval

Phillips Is Promoted By Clark

Named Executive Vice-President
Of Berrien Firm

BUCHANAN — Bert E. Phillips, head of Clark Equipment's Construction Machinery Division, was elected executive vice president Friday at the company's annual meeting.

The company reported to stockholders that 1967 first quarter earnings fell 16 per cent below the 1966 level despite a seven per cent increase in sales.

Phillips ranks next to the president, Walter E. Schirmer, in the company. Schirmer said Phillips eventually will be located at corporate headquarters in Buchanan. There was no announcement when a successor to Phillips will be named at the Construction Machinery Division, Benton Harbor.

Phillips became manager of the division when Clarence Killebrew resigned in 1965. Phillips formerly was manager of the Industrial Truck Division, Battle Creek.

EARNINGS DROP

The financial report said earnings for the first three months of 1967 amounted to $5,650,000 or 50 cents per share, compared to $6,460,000 or 58 cents a share, for the same period a year ago.

Sales rose to $123,023,000 in the first quarter compared to $115,412,000 in the first 1966 period.

Schirmer said the earnings slide resulted from startup costs of several new production facilities, unplanned overtime required to meet storm-delayed deliveries and a substantial increase in interest expense and

Christmas Dewhirst Dies At 87

Mother Of Tom,
Widow Of Judge

Dwindling ranks of the House of David have been further reduced by the death of Mrs. Christmas Dewhirst, widow of Judge H.T. Dewhirst, who headed the colony for 20 years.

Mrs. Dewhirst died at 7:30 a.m. today in Mercy hospital. She was 87 years old. Surviving is a son, H. Thomas (Tom) Dewhirst, one of the cult's best known members and a Twin City civic leader. Another son, Robert, died a year ago today.

Two men long associated with the House of David — Percy Bulley, 64, and William Hannaford, 90, — died last week. Colony ranks reportedly are less than 100 with the majority of members past 60.

Mrs. Dewhirst was born on Dec. 26, 1879, in Edwards county, Ill. She was known to family and friends as Holly. She attended Northwestern University, and was married May 26, 1906, to H. J. Dewhirst, an attorney practicing at Olney, Ill. The couple later moved to California where Atty. Dewhirst was named a superior court judge.

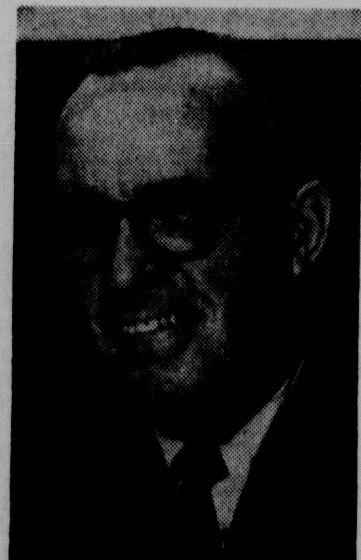

CAME IN 1920

In 1920, Judge Dewhirst brought his wife and two sons to Benton Harbor to join King Ben's colony. He was legal counsel for the House of David and credited with saving the colony from dissolution in a suit started by the State of Michigan.

The judge became chief administrator for the colony after King Ben's death in 1927. A factional dispute soon led to a walkout by Queen Mary and establishment of the City of David. Judge Dewhirst died in 1947.

Mrs. Dewhirst was a pianist, organist and music teacher. Another survivor is a sister, Mrs. Martha Southworth, of Redlands, Calif.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 a.m. Monday in the Kerlikowske and Starks funeral home with Rev. E. A. Irion of Zion Evangelical and Reformed church, St. Joseph, officiating. Burial will be in Crystal Springs cemetery.

Liquor On Sunday Bill Passes Too

Controversial
Measures Saved
By 'Horsetrading'

LANSING (AP) — Horsetrading Senate Republicans and Democrats swapped votes Friday night, passing implied consent and Sunday liquor bills, two of the most controversial issues of the session.

The senators spent about 30 minutes each on implied consent, backed by Gov. George Romney and passed by the House after several weeks of debate, and Sunday liquor sales, long sought by Detroit Democrats.

The bills were among some 60 pieces of legislation either passed or sent to deaths in committee as the Senate literally locked itself in to beat a midnight deadline for passage of bills in the house of origin.

24 AMENDMENTS

The senators tacked 24 amendments on the implied consent bill. It requires that a motorist, as a condition of getting a driver's license, agree to take a chemical test of blood, breath or urine to determine presence of alcohol.

Refusal to take the test could be admitted in court as evidence and the arrested suspect would lose his license if he refused the test.

The liquor bill was amended to apply only to licensed establishments in which gross receipts derived from sale of food or other goods and services exceed 50 per cent of the total gross receipts.

County boards of supervisors would be allowed to vote on Sunday sales within 60 days after the bill took effect. If they failed to do so, voters could initiate petitions requesting them to vote on the issue.

LIQUOR SALE

If they approved, liquor could be sold by the glass on Sunday after 12 noon.

Republican and Democratic sources indicated a deal on the two bills was negotiated after Republicans found they were four GOP votes shy of the 20 necessary for passage of implied consent.

In the final 28-4 vote on implied consent, 20 Republicans and eight Democrats voted "yes." Four Democrats cast "no" votes. Six others failed to vote.

Three Republicans joined 17 Democrats in passing the liquor bill 20-17. All opposing votes were cast by Republicans.

CHANGES MIND

Sen. Anthony Stamm, R-Kalamazoo, reluctantly cast what appeared to be the deciding vote, then withdrew and changed it to "nay" when Sen. Stanley Rozycki, D-Detroit, supplied another "yes" vote.

Rozycki was sponsor of a rival liquor bill.

The implied consent bill now must go back to the House for concurrence on Senate amendments.

The Senate deleted from the House version a section that

Bandits Hit Gas Station 6th Time

Masked Robbers Take $459 From Benton Firm

Two stocking-masked gunmen escaped with $459.77 from Elmer's Enco gas station, 2680 South M-139, in Benton township about 3 a. m. today, Berrien sheriff's officers reported.

It was the sixth robbery reported at the station since it opened six years ago and the second within six months, police said.

Attendant Barry Bergstrom, 20, of 572 Broadway, Benton Harbor, told deputies he had just walked into the office from a service rack when one of the gunmen told him to unlock the cash register and then drive away in his own car if he didn't want to get hurt.

There was no description of how the gunmen reached the station or how they fled.

Also taken in the robbery was a six-shot .38-caliber revolver registered at the Berrien sheriff's department to the gas station owner, Elmer Johnson, 550 May street, Benton Harbor. Its serial number is 25295.

MOSTLY IN BILLS
Reported missing to sheriff's deputies was about $40 in coins and the balance in bills, including $75 in ones.

Bergstrom told deputies only one of the two men spoke to him, and in a slow, clear voice. He described both men as about 5 feet 10 or 11 inches, 170

(See page 11, column 8)

Both men carried revolvers and wore stockings over their faces, Bergstrom told Deputy James Lester.

Bergstrom reported the gunmen, both described as Negroes about 5 feet 10 or 11 inches, entered the front door as he walked into the office.

One, Bergstrom reported, said: "We want your money, all of it" and ordered him to unlock the register and flee.

Attacked In Field Near Home

Detroit Suburb
Murders Occur
In Daylight

DETROIT (AP) — Police said a sex deviate strangled and molested two young sisters as they walked through a field toward their suburban Westland home Friday.

The killer—police theorized it was one man — left the crumpled, blood-spattered bodies of 8-year-old Kimberly Faith Crowther and her 8-year-old sister Deborah Louise in the field only 300 yards from their home.

A horror-stricken, 16-year-old boy discovered the bodies and thought at first that "They looked like dolls."

"That's what I thought they were at first," said Allan McAnally who found the bodies in a thicket while out walking his dog, Pudgie. "Then I saw the blood."

Police Chief Garrison Clayton said he was holding a man for questioning. The suspect was so drunk that he could not speak coherently, Clayton said.

HID IN BUSHES

Clayton said the attacker may have been drinking because a six-pack of beer cans was found behind bushes about 50 feet from a footpath across the field. Police said the assailant apparently lurked behind the bushes. The victims were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crowther.

Clayton said the girls had been sexually assaulted. Both bodies were nude.

They were killed while walking home from Stottlemeyer Elementary School where Kimberly was a first grader and Deborah was in the third grade. The school is only a block away from the slaying scene.

Clayton said the children had walked about a quarter of the way across the field when they were seized and strangled, apparently with one of their own stockings.

Westland police said they had received a complaint of a man trying to pick up children near the school. Children had been warned by teachers Friday to beware of strangers in the neighborhood.

Deborah and Kimberly also had been cautioned about cutting through the empty field by their mother, a neighbor said.

"She always made them follow the street," said Mrs. Dorothy Taylor, the children's grandmother. "But for the last few days they couldn't. There's construction work on Marquette Street and so the children had to cross the field."

Mrs. Crowther went looking for the children when they failed to return from school.

People standing about the murder scene turned her away before she could see the bodies. Her husband later identified the victims.

Police said no one in the neighborhood reported hearing any outcry, although several persons were working on lawns and gardens at the time of the slayings.

WAVE OF TERROR

Westland, a new city incorporated from part of Nankin Township, was turned into near hysteria a year ago when reports of prowlers and child molesters set off a wave of terror.

A group of women marched to the Wayne County Sheriff's office, which had police jurisdiction, demanding more protection. The sheriff was flooded by requests for gun permits.

Residents left porch lights burning all night and hardware stores reported a heavy sale of door locks.

Schools and parent-teacher groups organized blocks designating certain homes where children could go in case they were approached by strangers.

After the Crowther girls' bodies were found, tracking dogs were brought in and four men were picked up for questioning within a short time.

Three of them were released afterward police said.

The Crowthers had only one

Goodbye To The Old Courthouse

As one who battled the departure of the old light house on Lake boulevard to no more than a delaying action some ten years ago, we probably should not speak in this vein, but we do say "amen" to the decision of the Berrien county supervisors to demolish the old court house.

The board voted, almost to a man, two to be exact, on Thursday to pull the old veteran to the ground.

It has to be cleared with the St. Joseph city commission on a legal technicality.

The city donated the site to the county 72 years ago on condition that it be used as the center of the county government.

This was part of the deal to move the court house from Berrien Springs to St. Joseph.

As long as the county retains the land, probably as a parking lot for the time being, the supervisors' legal advisors think this reverter clause will not come into play. Simply to be certain, however, the county fathers will ask the city fathers for a quit claim on the reverter before spending any money to pull down the structure.

Urban Renewal will pay three-quarters of the estimated $10,000 wrecking charge, and the county picks up the balance.

Older people, particularly those inclined to historical lore do not approve of the decision.

This is to be expected. To an old time resident, smashing down the court house is the same as kicking an old and faithful dog out the door simply because he can't get around like he use to.

Saving the structure, though, is beyond the realities of the case.

The building is far from being an architectural gem. We've asked a number of people, including architects, what the style is, and about the best reply seems to be a heap of cut stone put together in an age when the brownstone motif was at its height.

Speaking of height, the building lost its principal distinction several years ago. This was the belfry which because of its deteriorating condition had to be removed so as not to endanger the main structure.

Heating and maintaining the building would be a nightmare, and accounts for the reluctance of anyone blessed by surplus funds and a love of history to acquire the property as a museum or similar purpose.

The supervisors likewise came around to same economic conclusion when evaluating the possibility of holding the building for additional space demands that may arise in the future.

The single disagreement with the county board is purely one of passing interest on behalf of the younger reader who may lack for a reasonably close hand knowledge of what took place around here in the old days.

The board's building committee in recommending demolition stated the structure has no historical significance.

This is true today, but 70 years ago, it was a different story.

The building exerted the same inflammatory effect upon some people as does a toreador waving his cape before the bull.

Benton Harbor and St. Joe weren't speaking to one another in those days, but they or at least their lawyers did concur on one point. It was too far and too tiresome to traipse over muddy or dusty country roads, depending on climatic conditions, to Berrien Springs to do legal business.

Berrien was the county seat then and had been for generations, from the time Berrien county was first carved out of Kalamazoo county.

This touched off a replay of the Civil War, replete with all equipment except guns and bayonets.

The maneuver of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor to swipe the court house from Berrien Springs led to a special election in 1894.

The Niles and Buchanan people reacted violently and for practical purposes Berrien Springs became a meridian which the map makers never contemplated.

Just as Napoleon remarked about God being on the side of him with the heavier battalions, the Twin Cities and their neighboring townships had more votes than the area from Berrien Springs south.

St. Joe became the county seat.

The brownstone court house was erected in the following year.

This, dear young reader, was the genesis of that "north end, south end" phrase which is yet tossed about whenever county affairs are mentioned.

It explains the rivalry between the Niles and St. Joseph high schools, and it is still a fulcrum in political considerations.

Soon the old building will be one less shadow of that past. More likely, however, it will take another generation or so to foreclose north and south as a local delineator.

Human 'Statistics'

In the highly developed areas of the world, that part of the twentieth century which has expired has been the most revolutionary period in the history of man. But in the lexicon of the sideshow Barker, "you ain't seen nothing yet."

Perhaps it is a bit risky to predict what historians of the next century will say when they close the records of this one, such is the dizzying pace of scientific and technological developments. At today's pace more technological changes of a revolutionary import occur in one decade than in the previous century.

If there is one common denominator behind much of the change now under way, and, predictably, yet to come, it is the lowly digit. Numbers have become not only a way of life in human pursuits, but almost a fetish to modern civilization.

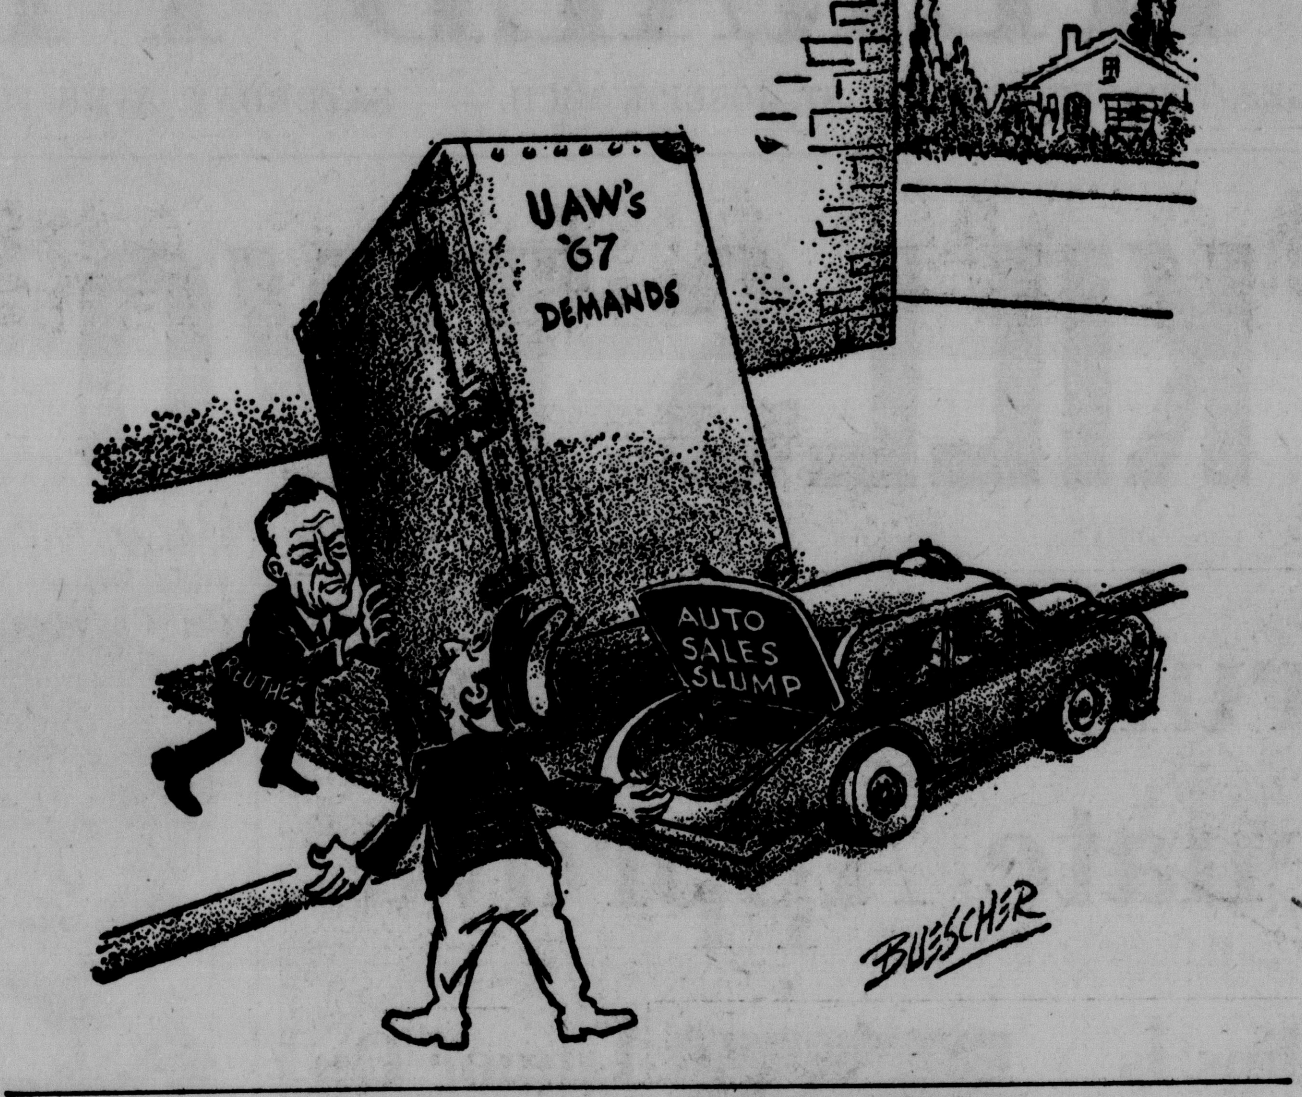

With all the emphasis today on numbers as identification symbols, the outlook is for more of the same in the years to come. Income tax reports, social security records, driving licenses, bank accounts, credit cards and dozens of other frequently used services require individual identification numbers for the routine transaction of business.

A single individual may have dozens of numbers assigned to him, if one takes into account such records as employee payroll lists and department store charge accounts. From the beginning of wide proliferation of numbers as the easiest method of compiling multitudinous records, there have been suggestions that some method be devised for assigning one master number to each individual, which he could use for all purposes throughout his life.

For more than a year, a committee of the American Bankers Association has been studying the possibilities of a single number system and acceptance of the concept by all governmental and private users of identification digits. The committee's released survey reveals that of 244 organizations queried, 83 per cent thought a single identification number would be helpful in their routine transactions.

With that and similar findings to bolster the argument the ABA might be able to begin a campaign for a single identification system. If such a system is ever achieved, the already widely used social security number seems the logical candidate for the granddaddy of numbers.

Inside Washington

By HENRY CATHCART

WASHINGTON — Economists who take the pulse of national business activity seem to be evenly divided about what lies ahead, whether business will resume its normal upward pace or decline further into a recession. As could be expected, most of the economists who believe in the upswing theory are employees of the federal government, while most figuring on a recession are employed by the business community.

To observers, the division is more than a little uncomfortable. As a general rule, when things look dim, government economists are the last to admit it. They fear that an honest assessment under these conditions could accelerate a downturn.

The fact that business economists look for a downturn is disturbing as well. Business executives make their decisions in part on the projections of their economists. Obviously, if these projections point to a downturn, business tends to trim its sails a bit. This, too, can accelerate a downturn.

In the current situation the differing views can be traced to a relatively few factors. The government economists place great stress on the outlook for federal spending, particularly on the Vietnam war. New reports in Washington forecast 1968 fiscal year spending on the war as running well ahead of present budget estimates.

There are reports that, instead of stabilizing the force in Vietnam, President Johnson intends to increase the number by 50,000 troops. This, together with a further intensification of the fighting, is what is expected to run up federal spending.

Another factor concerns government estimates of the level of business activity. Government takes encouragement from what it believes is a leveling off of the recent decline in industrial activity. This is believed to foretell a resumption of an upturn, an event seemingly confirmed by continuing high employment.

A newly published little work called "The Language of Flowers" should prove invaluable to bashful lovers. For instance, if you want to tell a girl "You look freeze me," just send her a spray of ficoides. Indian jasmine signifies "I attach myself to you." A handful of dried white rose petals should stop an over-enthusiastic suitor squarely in his tracks: the message is "I prefer death to the loss of innocence." A gift of wild daisies seems safest for the cautious folk. This only means "I'll think it over."

A tyrannical producer, directing a mammoth scene for a Biblical epic, screamed at his army of extras one morning, "Listen here, you bums! This scene is costing me $50,000 an hour, and damn it, when those Ten Commandments are broken, I want to hear them break!"

BORN TODAY

British soldier and statesman Arthur Wellesley, first Duke of Wellington, was born in Dublin, Ireland in 1769 and in later years earned the nickname "Iron Duke."

He studied without distinction at Chelsea, Eton, and a French military school at Angers. By the time he was 18, he was commissioned an ensign and six years later he was a lieutenant-colonel.

In the meantime he had served as aide-de-camp to two viceroys of Ireland, and entered Parliament.

He served brilliantly in India from 1799 to 1805, where his brother Richard was governor general; returned to England where he was knighted, elected to Parliament and appointed secretary for Ireland.

While holding that post he led expeditions against the Danes and against the French in Portugal and Spain.

After being created a duke in 1814, Wellington represented England at the Congress of Vienna.

When Napoleon escaped from Elba in 1815, Wellington commanded the allied British-Hanoverian-Brunswick-Nassau-Dutch-Belgian forces which crushed him at Waterloo.

A popular idol in England, he was prime minister from 1828 to 1830, but his opposition to electoral reforms resulted in a Tory defeat at the polls.

In 1842, Queen Victoria appointed him commander of the British army for the remainder of his lifetime.

Others born today are publisher William Randolph Hearst, college founder Matthew Vassar, Emperor Hirohito of Japan, actress Celeste Holm, dancer Jeanmarie, bandleader Duke Ellington.

Those born April 30 are Queen Juliana of Netherlands, composer Franz Lehár, choral conductor Robert Shaw, poet John Ransom.

speaking of YOUR HEALTH

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.

We who live in a privileged country protected by nutritious diets and excellent medical care can hardly believe that so many people live a life of starvation.

In fact, many die prematurely because of inadequate food and health protections.

The population explosion is considered by many sociologists as being more dangerous than nuclear explosions because of the possibility that the world may not be able to produce sufficient food.

It is with this in mind that scientists have been seeking special types of protein to nourish those who might otherwise be deprived of long years of health. In many places all over the world there is a desperate need for protein to sustain life.

Out of these efforts to find a protein concentrate has come a remarkable bit of information. The scientists have found that when protein and their end products, amino acids, are lacking there is a great interference with the learning power of children. There is now definite evidence that shows that the mental development of a growing child depends on the amount of protein he eats.

Dr. Moises Behar of Guatemala City spoke at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and pointed out that protein deficiency in childhood affects mental growth. Many experimental studies seem to confirm this idea.

A new brain food, concentrated fish protein, may soon be available in tremendous quantities to meet the needs of all malnourished human beings everywhere. This is probably the beginning of the search for a food supplement that will bring added years of life while increasing the intelligence quotient (I.Q.) of those privileged to survive.

The college population is tremendous. Whenever I am granted the opportunity to speak at colleges and universities I am thrilled by the feeling of hope that pervades the campuses. Thousands of young, vital, enthusiastic men and women driving towards a goal emphasize the solid structure of our nation.

Yet these young men and women are threatened by a desire to live their life in haste, concentrating time, falsely supported by drugs. Tranquilizers, barbiturates, goof-balls, L.S.D., marijuana and pep pills tempt the uninitiated as an escape from their fears and anxieties; some real, many imaginary.

When these drugs are taken without the specific direction of a physician they can be "dynamite" that undermines the student's present and future accomplishments.

Mrs. Esther Rauschenbush, President of Sarah Lawrence College in New York, brilliantly presented the concept of drugs on college campus when she said, "The use of such drugs has long been common, even in our society which condemns their use, among people whose lives hold little opportunity for self-fulfillment, who are prisoners of a constricting life in society and who find some relief from the pain, the monotony and the despair of living with themselves by the escape such drugs afford."

"We know that, at the other end, when people who have had very wide opportunity for personal and social experience have felt they have come to the end of the possibility of sensation they seek by more familiar means, they seek the tractive stimulation such drugs provide."

As an educator she pleads that students face the problems squarely and balance a "new kick sensation" against a fruitful life of happiness.

Opening lead — King of spades.

Bridge is now a lazy man's game. You have to take time out occasionally to think. To play mechanically and without thought is bound to lead to poor results.

Take this hand where South got a five diamonds doubled. West led the king of spades and continued with a spade which declarer ruffed. After forcing out the ace of trumps, South had an easy time making eleven tricks; his club loser went on dummy's fourth heart.

But the contract should have gone down one. East should have overtaken the spade king with the ace and led the king of clubs. Had he done this, South would have been defeated, for he would have had no way of avoiding the club loser.

Actually, this was not a difficult play to make. The only thing hard about the play is to overcome the natural reluctance to waste an ace on partner's king.

However, a little thought should convince East that the right play is to overtake the king. There are a sufficient number of clues to be gathered from the bidding, the opening lead and the appearance of dummy's hearts to persuade East of the need for a prompt shift to clubs.

West's spade raise must have been made with either three, four or five spades. If West has five spades, no harm can come from playing the ace, since declarer is void of the suit.

Similarly, if West has four spades, south has one, and East can easily afford to play the ace in order to make the vital club shift.

Even if West has only three spades, the ace play does no harm. That is because West is marked by the opening lead with the queen of spades as well as the king. (If West originally had the K-9-2, he would lead the Queen. With the K-Q-2 or the K-Q-9-2, he would lead the king.)

All signs point clearly in one direction. East must overtake the king with the ace.

She will be selected from 29 community representatives at the climax of the Blossomtime beauty pageant, which begins at 8 p.m. in Benton Harbor high school gymnasium.

Tickets can be obtained Monday at Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce offices in Benton Harbor and St. Joseph and the box office which opens at 6:30 p.m. George Mirabel, Blossomtime secretary, said tickets are $2 balcony and $2.50 main floor bleachers. Some 600 reserved seats are sold.

Samuelson is farm director for the station, heard in five states, including Michigan. He also has a live television program, "Top O' The Morning," seen in color each weekday morning.

Break-Ins Are Probed In Benton

Benton township police are investigating two break-ins that were reported yesterday.

Loran Danneheiser, principal of Boynton school, 1700 Britain avenue, reported that a $49 record changer was taken from the main office of the school. He said entry to the school was apparently made through an unlocked door. Entry to the office was made by breaking a window.

Hampton's grocery store, 1800 Highland avenue, reported the loss of $150 in pennies and an undetermined amount of candy, cigarettes, meat and gum in the break-in. Police said the burglar used two tires and a bench to climb to a window seven feet above the ground. The window was broken to gain entry.

Les Ballard of Ashley Ford Sales, 1074 East Napier avenue, also reported the larceny of a $65 carburetor assembly from a 1967 model car yesterday.

May Delay Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress appears certain to grant President Johnson's request for a 47-day extension of the no-strike period in the nationwide dispute between the railroads and six shopcraft unions. Changes At Coca-Cola Plant Here

Grimm, Nimitz Promoted By Bottling Unit

The directors of Twin City Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Inc., today announced changes in its management line-up, designed for the double purpose of continuing the business of the St. Joseph distributor and to refute rumors that it is for sale, either totally or on a piecemeal basis.

Robert J. Grimm, 44, takes over as chief executive officer with the title of vice president and general manager and Gerald Nimitz is moved up to sales manager.

D. F. Jackson, who started the firm better than 30 years ago, continues as board chairman and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. George D. Jackson, is president.

Early this year the untimely death of the younger Jackson who had been Twin City Coca-Cola's president fostered widely circulated tales that the closely held firm would be sold to a different management.

PREVIOUS POSTS

Grimm joined the firm in 1965 as sales manager. He came in from the Thayer Paper company as sales manager of the Benton Harbor wholesaler. Prior to joining Thayer he had been personnel director and purchasing agent for five years with Twin Cities Container corporation, at Coloma.

A graduate of the St. Joseph high school, Grimm was first in the U.S. Merchant Marine for 13 years. He shipped out first as a deckhand on Great Lakes ore boats during World War II and finished as a skipper of an ocean freighter.

He, his wife and three children reside at 3901 Lakeshore drive, St. Joseph. He is a past president of the Berrien County Industrial club and a former trustee of Shoreham village.

Nimitz, 33, has been with the firm for 16 years, starting first as a route salesman. He became route manager last year.

He is a graduate of St. Joseph high school, and active in Trinity Lutheran church affairs

ALL AROUND OUR TOWNS

He Taught Hollywood's Canine Stars How To Act

After coaching Hollywood canine stars for two months, James F. Weideman has returned to Berrien county and the more prosaic task of teaching Fido to sit.

Weideman handled Duke of Beverly Hill Billies fame, taught tricks to Celo II and worked Tramp of My Three Sons. His own dog Storm landed a part in a recent Fugitive show on television and has a walk on role in the movie Camelot.

Now Weideman's going to resume his Southwestern Michigan Dog Training and Obedience school. He has dog training assignments for the Livingston, Ill., county sheriff's department, and will hold registration Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at Lakeshore high school for obedience classes to make household pets better mannered.

Storm, a big German Shepherd, was trained in hurdling, jumping retrieving, police work and tracking before Weideman took him to Hollywood. Weideman said he played a wolf in the Fugitive episode and battled Bear Heart, who's also known as the last of the original Rin Tin Tins.

"Storm was filmed in Camelot, but we are not positive that he will be in the film that is released. There are still four or five months shooting time and some parts may be cut," Weideman explained.

Training a dog for an acting role is much different than obedience or police work. Moves require animation and surprise—not the rigid attention of a well drilled police dog or pet.

"There is no place for a mistake. Productions like Camelot can cost $7,000 a minute to shoot. It's not surprising that directors scream when actors make a mistake," Weideman said.

He described coaching canine actors as a "great experience." But Mrs. Weideman preferred Berrien county as a place to live.

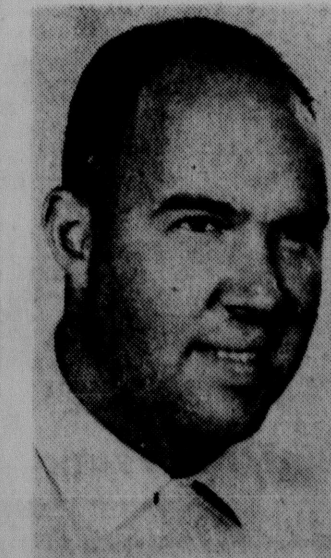

"We just couldn't find the right spot. They're terracing all the mountains for subdivisions in the Los Angeles area and there isn't much raw land left. Now we're looking for a farm in the Stevensville area," said Weideman.

ROBERT LEE AREND, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Arend, Baroda, was recently initiated into Kappa Delta Pi honor society at Western Michigan university. He was named to this semester's dean's list with an all-A average.

He is a graduate of Lakeshore high school and Moody Bible institute where he was a member of Clara L. Myers National Honor society and Delta Epsilon Chi honor society. He will graduate next year with degrees in pastoral training and in education. He plans to continue his education in a Bible seminary.

'Demonstration City' Plan Now Taking Its Final Form

Six men have been meeting since Wednesday in the Benton township municipal building to revise and correct a one-inch thick mimeographed outline they plan to submit to the U.S. Development department for "Demonstration City" funds.

They met Friday with cooperating agencies to make final revisions before presenting the plan for a $63,000 federal grant which the government promises to pay as its 80 per cent of the planning cost for a "Demonstration City," provided Benton Harbor and Benton township qualify.

Deadline for the first outline is May 1, but the joint political units have until May 8 to get their application in to qualify for this year's some 50 cities to be selected. If the local bodies and the St. Joseph Recreational Baseball league.

He, his wife, and three children, reside at 1026 Willow drive, St. Joseph.

are selected they will receive a grant to plan the development of a demonstration or model city.

The concept amounts to total urban renewal involving socioeconomic aspects as well as substandard buildings.

AREA GROWS

The "Demonstration City" area has been extended on the east to Euclid avenue. Other boundaries are the Twin Cities airport on the north, Paw Paw avenue and Valley drive on the west and Britain avenue on the south.

An agreement to act jointly is expected to be presented to the Benton Harbor city commission Monday night and to the township board of trustees Tuesday night at their regularly scheduled meetings.

Planning consultants from the Harland Bartholomew & Associates were to take the finalized copy to their firm in St. Louis this weekend and return May 8 with the final form.

TELLS OF CONDITIONS

The present report includes a detailed outline of the Benton Harbor-Benton township area and lists its sociological and physical conditions.

If the report is approved, work can begin on plans to rehabilitate the worst and largest contiguous blighted area that includes no more than 20 per cent of the combined population. The area will be called "Demonstration City."

Working on the preliminary plans is a task force of four men from this area: George Welch, planning commissioner for Benton township; Don Stewart, Benton Harbor city manager; Leslie Cripps, Benton Harbor urban renewal director and Wayne Stevens, Benton township rehabilitation director.

Working with them have been Tom Fitzgerald and Robert Hoekstra from Harland Bartholomew & Associates.

Clark Equipment Proudly Shows Off Products

CLARK EQUIPMENT ON DISPLAY: Overhead shot of the parking lot near the entrance to the Clark Equipment Co. plant in Buchanan shows the dozers, front end loaders, fork lifts and trailers on display there during Clark's annual meeting program yesterday, today and tomorrow. The program was highlighted by the annual stockholders meeting yesterday. On display are Clark's newest products and the latest models in its already established lines. All Clark's divisions are represented. The displays will be open to the public from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. today and tomorrow.

ARTICULATED DOZER: Clark Equipment Co. officials decided to show off their best-looking secretaries along with one of their biggest "articulated" tractor-dozers in their display at the Buchanan plant. An articulated dozer actually has a two-piece structural frame hinged together between the two axels. This allows for greater maneuverability. This "Michigan" model 280, which stands 10 feet high, and a "Michigan" model 175 are the latest Clark tractor-dozers to be manufactured with the hinged frame feature. Both are manufactured at the Construction Machinery Division in Benton Harbor.

Old Dispute Settled Amicably

Oronoko Township To Collect Levies

A amicable settlement was reached Friday in the three-year-old dispute between Andrews University and Oronoko township over taxation of certain university property.

Township officials agreed to recognize educational value of the disputed property and allow some exemption. University representatives indicated they recognized the property did also have commercial value and should be at least partially taxable.

A consent judgment, tentatively granted by Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns, calls for payment by the university of $19,082.76 in back taxes and sets up a schedule for taxation of property in question.

AGREE ON SCHEDULE

The schedule calls for 50 per cent taxation of the disputed university print shop, known as the "University Press;" 85 per cent taxation of the wood products shop; 75 per cent taxation of the book bindery, and 102 per cent taxation of the service center, which houses a food market, barber shop and beauty shop.

The taxation is only on land and buildings — not merchandise, equipment or other personal property — except in the case of the service center. Inventory of the service center will be taxed as personal property.

Though not part of the original dispute, 24 houses occupied by university employees will also be placed on tax rolls. The houses in subdivisions near university property, have added roughly $230,000 to the township's 1965 equalized valuation.

Oronoko Township Supervisor Robert Feather said the university agreed to placement of the houses on tax rolls, in connection with its policy of encouraging employees to become more and more a part of the community.

A key item in the judgment Feather added, was the stipulation that yearly reviews be made of university property use, and legislation effecting its tax standing. Changes in use of the property or state tax law could mean changes in the tax schedule, Feather said, and the yearly reviews should prevent similar disputes in the future.

The judgment also provides for transfer of taxes if the university should take over operation of a service station on university property. Taxes are now paid by the parent oil company, but if the facility is someday taken over by the university tax bills would be transferred.

BOTH SIDES PRAISED

Judge Byrns complimented attorneys and officials of both the university and the township for reaching the agreement. He said it shows considerable intelligent and diligent work on both sides and the result is very pleasing to the court. The township was represented by Berrien Springs Attorney Donald Dick. Attorney James Park of Lansing represented the university.

The judgment is still tentative, it has not yet been signed by Berrien Prosecutor John Hammond, who represented the county as an intervening defendant. Judge Byrns indicated Hammond must either sign the judgment or file written objections by 5 p. m. Monday. The state attorney general's office was also listed as an intervening defendant but withdrew from the case when agreement was reached.

This recommendation was submitted to the board of supervisors of Berrien county in January of 1966 and approved unanimously by the board of supervisors in May of last year. In March, the chief elected officials agreed to seek their share of the cost of the study from their governmental units.

Study Bids On Jail Inter-Com

Lowest Price Is Set At $5,020

Replacement of the Berrien county jail intercoms, which proved totally useless during a recent jail break attempt, moved a step closer to reality Friday, as Berrien supervisors building committee members examined bids for a new system.

Apparent low bidder is All-Tronics, Inc. of Kalamazoo, which has offered a new system, complete with installation, for $5,020. The firm bid equipment alone at $3,239 and also offered an installation bid of $2,000 if equipment is purchased from another firm.

Committee members said Courthouse Building Superintendent Florian Reddig and Sheriff Henry Griese will inspect work done by the firm at the Calhoun county jail and then go over specifications with representatives from the firm before a final decision is made.

The committee did indicate, however, that the firm's bid appears satisfactory, and is more than $1,000 lower than its nearest competitor.

Other bids for the installed facility were from Sound Engineering of Benton Harbor, $6,935; Electronics LTO of New Troy, $6,110; Industrial Sound of South Bend, $8,566.73; and Boom Sound of Chicago, $10,236.

Goodbye To The Old Courthouse

As one who battled the departure of the old light house on Lake boulevard to no more than a delaying action some ten years ago, we probably should not speak in this vein, but we do say "amen" to the decision of the Berrien county supervisors to demolish the old court house.

The board voted, almost to a man, two to be exact, on Thursday to pull the old veteran to the ground.

It has to be cleared with the St. Joseph city commission on a legal technicality.

The city donated the site to the county 72 years ago on condition that it be used as the center of the county government.

This was part of the deal to move the court house from Berrien Springs to St. Joseph.

As long as the county retains the land, probably as a parking lot for the time being, the supervisors' legal advisors think this reverter clause will not come into play. Simply to be certain, however, the county fathers will ask the city fathers for a quit claim on the reverter before spending any money to pull down the structure.

Urban Renewal will pay three-quarters of the estimated $10,000 wrecking charge, and the county picks up the balance.

Older people, particularly those inclined to historical lore do not approve of the decision.

This is to be expected. To an old time resident, smashing down the court house is the same as kicking an old and faithful dog out the door simply because he can't get around like he use to.

Saving the structure, though, is beyond the realities of the case.

The building is far from being an architectural gem. We've asked a number of people, including architects, what the style is, and about the best reply seems to be a heap of cut stone put together in an age when the brownstone motif was at its height.

Speaking of height, the building lost its principal distinction several years ago. This was the belfry which because of its deteriorating condition had to be removed so as not to endanger the main structure.

Heating and maintaining the building would be a nightmare, and accounts for the reluctance of anyone blessed by surplus funds and a love of history to acquire the property as a museum or similar purpose.

The supervisors likewise came around to same economic conclusion when evaluating the possibility of holding the building for additional space demands that may arise in the future.

The single disagreement with the county board is purely one of passing interest on behalf of the younger reader who may lack for a reasonably close hand knowledge of what took place around here in the old days.

The board's building committee in recommending demolition stated the structure has no historical significance.

This is true today, but 70 years ago, it was a different story.

The building exerted the same inflammatory effect upon some people as does a torchbearer waving his cape before the bull.

Benton Harbor and St. Joe weren't speaking to one another in those days, but they or at least their lawyers did concur on one point. It was too far and too tiresome to traipse over muddy or dusty country roads, depending on climatic conditions, to Berrien Springs to do legal business.

Berrien was the county seat then and had been for generations, from the time Berrien county was first carved out of Kalamazoo county.

This touched off a replay of the Civil War, replete with all equipment except guns and bayonets.

The maneuver of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor to swipe the court house from Berrien Springs led to a special election in 1894.

The Niles and Buchanan people reacted violently and for practical purposes Berrien Springs became a meridian which the map makers never contemplated.

Just as Napoleon remarked about God being on the side of him with the heavier battalions, the Twin Cities and their neighboring townships had more votes than the area from Berrien Springs south.

St. Joe became the county seat.

The brownstone court house was erected in the following year.

This, dear young reader, was the genesis of that "north end, south end" phrase which is yet tossed about whenever county affairs are mentioned.

It explains the rivalry between the Niles and St. Joseph high schools, and it is still a fulcrum in political considerations.

Soon the old building will be one less shadow of that past. More likely, however, it will take another generation or so to foreclose north and south as a local delineator.

Human 'Statistics'

In the highly developed areas of the world, that part of the twentieth century which has expired has been the most revolutionary period in the history of man. But in the lexicon of the sideshow Barker, "you ain't seen nothing yet."

Perhaps it is a bit risky to predict what historians of the next century will say when they close the records of this one, such is the dizzying pace of scientific and technological developments. At today's pace more technological changes of a revolutionary import occur in one decade than in the previous century.

If there is one common denominator behind much of the change now under way, and, predictably, yet to come, it is the lowly digit. Numbers have become not only a way of life in human pursuits, but almost a fetish to modern civilization.

With all the emphasis today on numbers as identification symbols, the outlook is for more of the same in the years to come. Income tax reports, social security records, driving licenses, bank accounts, credit cards and dozens of other frequently used services require individual identification numbers for the routine transaction of business.

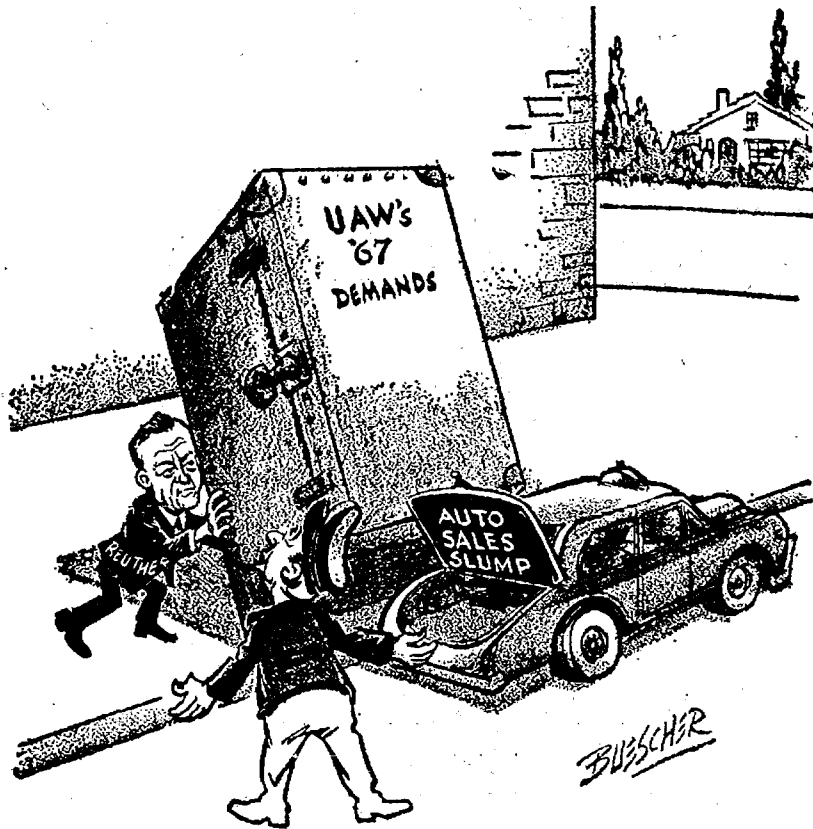

A single individual may have dozens of numbers assigned to him, if one takes into account such records as employee payroll lists and department store charge accounts. From the beginning of wide proliferation of numbers as the easiest method of compiling multitudinous records, there have been suggestions that some method be devised for assigning one master number to each individual, which he could use for all purposes throughout his life.

For more than a year, a committee of the American Bankers Association has been studying the possibilities of a single number system and acceptance of the concept by all governmental and private users of identification digits. The committee's released survey reveals that of 244 organizations queried, 83 per cent thought a single identification number would be helpful in their routine transactions.

With that and similar findings to bolster the argument the ABA might be able to begin a campaign for a single identification system. If such a system is ever achieved, the already widely used social security number seems the logical candidate for the granddaddy of numbers.

President William Howard Taft tossed out the first baseball for the 1910 season, starting a custom still followed.

At home the president called every American to war — every man, woman and child. The price of victory, he said, is hard work, sorrow and blood.

Those French demonstrators who twice in a week burned and destroyed an American flag couldn't be students of history. Obviously they never heard of their famed fellow compatriot, the Marquis de Lafayette.

Statistics show only one out of every 100 Americans is free of tooth cavities. O.K., the rest of us will bear that — but we don't have to grin!

Most bear's fur and claws are the same color, we read. Together they represent a lot of wear and tear!

A tiny, three-month old female mouse named Yorkie was declared the winner from among 724 contestants in the annual show put on in London by the British National Mouse Club. Just squeaked out a victory, no doubt.

On April 16 this year snow fell on Tokyo for the first time on that late date in 92 years of that city's recorded meteorological history. Honorable weatherman no so honorable?

A biologist predicts that in the future (dim and distant, we hope) the human race will be 100 per cent vegetarians. What makes him think us red-blooded Americans will give up our hamburgers and hot dogs without a fight?

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A newly published little work called "The Language of Flowers" should prove invaluable to bashful lovers. For instance, if you want to tell a girl "Your looks freeze me," just send her a spray of ficolides. Indian jasmine signifies "I attach myself to you." A handful of dried white rose petals should stop an over-enthusiastic suitor squarely in his tracks: the message is "I prefer death to the loss of innocence." A gift of wild daisies seems safest for the cautious folk. This only means "I'll think it over."

A tyrannical producer, directing a mammoth scene for a Biblical epic, screamed at his army of extras one morning, "Listen here, you bums! This scene is costing me $50,000 an hour, and damn it, when those Ten Commandments are broken, I want to hear them break!"

Features

speaking of YOUR HEALTH

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.

We who live in a privileged country protected by nutritious diets and excellent medical care can hardly believe that so many people live a life of starvation.

In fact, many die prematurely because of inadequate food and health protections.

The population explosion is considered by many sociologists as being more dangerous than nuclear explosions because of the possibility that the world may not be able to produce sufficient food.

It is with this in mind that scientists have been seeking special types of protein to nourish those who might otherwise be deprived of long years of health. In many places all over the world there is a desperate need for protein to sustain life.

Out of these efforts to find a protein concentrate has come a remarkable bit of information. The scientists have found that when protein and their end products, amino acids, are lacking there is a great interference with the learning power of children. There is now definite evidence that shows that the mental development of a growing child depends on the amount of protein he eats.

Dr. Moses Behar of Guatemala City spoke at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and pointed out that protein deficiency in childhood affects mental growth. Many experimental studies seem to confirm this idea.

A new brain food, concentrated fish protein, may soon be available in tremendous quantities to meet the needs of all malnourished human beings everywhere. This is probably the beginning of the search for a food supplement that will bring added years of life while increasing the intelligence quotient (I.Q.) of those privileged to survive.

The college population is tremendous. Whenever I am granted the opportunity to speak at colleges and universities I am thrilled by the feeling of hope that pervades the campuses. Thousands of young, vital, enthusiastic men and women driving towards a goal emphasizes the solid structure of our nation.

Yet these young men and women are threatened by a desire to live their life in haste, concentrating time, falsely supported by drugs. Tranquilizers, barbiturates, goof-balls, L.S.D., marijuana and pep pills tempt the uninitiated as an escape from their fears and anxieties; some real, many imaginary.

When these drugs are taken without the specific direction of a physician they can be "dynamite" that undermines the student's present and future accomplishments.

Mrs. Esther Raushenbush, President of Sarah Lawrence College in New York, brilliantly presented the concept of drugs on college campus. When she said, "The use of such drugs has long been common, even in our society which condemns their use, among people whose lives hold little opportunity for self-fulfillment, who are prisoners of a constructing personal life or a constricting life in society and who find some relief from the pain, the monotony and the despair of living with themselves by the escape such drugs afford."

"We know that, at the other end, when people who have had very wide opportunity for personal and social experience have felt they have come to the end of the possibility of sensations they seek by more familiar means, they seek the drastic stimulation such drugs provide."

As an educator she pleads that students face the problems squarely and balance a "new kick sensation" against a fruitful life of happiness.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Bridge is now a lazy man's game. You have to take time out occasionally to think. To play mechanically and without thought is bound to lead to poor results.

Take this hand where South got a five diamonds doubled. West led the king of spades and continued with a spade which declarer ruffed. After forcing out the ace of trumps, South had an easy time making eleven tricks; his club loser went on dummy's fourth heart.

But the contract should have gone down one. East should have overtaken the spade king with the ace and led the king of clubs. Had he done this, South would have been defeated, for he would have had no way of avoiding the club loser.

Actually, this was not a difficult play to make. The only thing hard about the play is to overcome the natural reluctance to waste an ace on partner's king.

However, a little thought should convince East that the right play is to overtake the king. There are a sufficient number of clues to be gathered from the bidding, the opening lead and the appearance of dummy's hearts to persuade East of the need for a prompt shift to clubs.

West's spade raise must have been made with either three, four or five spades. If West has five spades, no harm can come from playing the ace, since declarer is void of the suit.

Similarly, if West has four spades, south has one, and East can easily afford to play the ace in order to make the vital club shift.

Even if West has only three spades, the ace play does no harm. That is because West is marked by the opening lead with the queen of spades as well as the king. (If West originally had the K-9-2, he would lead the deuce. With the K-Q-2 or the K-Q-9-2, he would lead the king.)

All signs point clearly in one direction. East must overtake the king with the ace.

BORN TODAY

British soldier and statesman Arthur Wellesley, first Duke of Wellington, was born in Dublin, Ireland in 1769 and in later years earned the nickname "Iron Duke."

He studied without distinction at Chelsea, Eton, and a French military school at Angers. By the time he was 18, he was commissioned an ensign and six years later he was lieutenant-colonel.

In the meantime he had served as aide-de-camp to two viceroys of Ireland, and entered Parliament.

He served brilliantly in India from 1799 to 1805, where his brother Richard was governor general; returned to England where he was knighted, elected to Parliament and appointed secretary for Ireland.

While holding that post he led expeditions against the Danes and against the French in Portugal and Spain.

After being created a duke in 1814, Wellington represented England at the Congress of Vienna.

When Napoleon escaped from Elba in 1815, Wellington commanded the allied British-Hanoverian-Brunswick-Nassauers Dutch-Belgian forces which crushed him at Waterloo.

A popular idol in England, he was prime minister from 1828 to 1830, but his opposition to electoral reforms resulted in a Tory defeat at the polls.

In 1842, Queen Victoria appointed him commander of the British army for the remainder of his lifetime.

Others born today are publisher William Randolph Hearst, college founder Matthew Vassar, Emperor Hirohito of Japan, actress Celeste Holm, dancer Jeanmarie, bandleader Duke Ellington.

Those born April 30 are Queen Juliana of Netherlands, composer Franz Lehár, choral conductor Robert Shaw, poet John Ransom.

She will be selected from 29 community representatives at the climax of the Blossomtime beauty pageant, which begins at 8 p.m. in Benton Harbor high school gymnasium.

Samuelson also is host on the WGN Barn Dance, broadcast every Saturday night.

Blossomtime officials have announced that judges for the queen contest will be Mrs. Kay Falk of the Mike Falk Entertainment Agency, Detroit; Robert J. Fischgrund, president of the Frances Shop, South Bend, and Jack Martin, feature editor for the Detroit Free Press.

Break-Ins Are Probed In Benton

Benton township police are investigating two break-ins that were reported yesterday.

Loran Dannheiser, principal of Boynton school, 1700 Britain avenue, reported that a $49 record changer was taken from the main office of the school. He said entry to the school was apparently made through an unlocked door. Entry to the office was made by breaking a window.

Hampton's grocery store, 1800 Highland avenue, reported the loss of $1.50 in pennies and an undetermined amount of candy, cigarettes, meat and gum in the break-in. Police said the burglar used two tires and a bench to climb to a window seven feet above the ground. The window was broken to gain entry.

Les Ballard of Ashley Ford Sales, 1074 East Napier avenue, also reported the larceny of a $65 carburetor assembly from a 1967 model car yesterday.

Changes At Coca-Cola Plant Here

Grimm, Nimitz
Promoted By Bottling Unit

The directors of Twin City Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Inc., today announced changes in its management line-up, designed for the double purpose of continuing the business of the St. Joseph distributor and to refute rumors that it is for sale, either totally or on a piecemeal basis.

Robert J. Grimm, 44, takes over as chief executive officer with the title of vice president and general manager and Gerald Nimitz is moved up to sales manager.

D. F. Jackson, who started the firm better than 30 years ago, continues as board chairman and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. George D. Jackson, is president.

Early this year the untimely death of the younger Jackson who had been Twin City Coca-Cola's president fostered widely circulated tales that the closely held firm would be sold to a different management.

PREVIOUS POSTS

Grimm joined the firm in 1965 as sales manager. He came in from the Thayer Paper company as sales manager of the Benton Harbor wholesaler. Prior to joining Thayer he had been personnel director and purchasing agent for five years with Twin Cities Container corporation, at Coloma.

A graduate of the St. Joseph high school, Grimm was first in the U.S. Merchant Marine for 13 years. He shipped out first as a deckhand on Great Lakes ore boats during World War II and finished as a skipper of an ocean freighter.

He, his wife and three children reside at 3901 Lakeshore drive, St. Joseph. He is a past president of the Berrien County Industrial club and a former trustee of Shoreham village.

Nimitz, 33, has been with the firm for 16 years, starting first as a route salesman. He became route manager last year.

He is a graduate of St. Joseph high school, and active in Trinity Lutheran church affairs

'Demonstration City' Plan Now Taking Its Final Form

Six men have been meeting since Wednesday in the Benton township municipal building to revise and correct a one-inch thick mimeographed outline they plan to submit to the U.S. Development department for "Demonstration City" funds.

They met Friday with cooperating agencies to make final revisions before presenting the plan for a $63,000 federal grant which the government promises to pay as its 80 per cent of the planning cost for a "Demonstration City," provided Benton Harbor and Benton township qualify.

Deadline for the first outline is May 1, but the joint political units have until May 8 to get their application in to qualify for this year's some 50 cities to be selected. If the local bodies are selected they will receive a grant to plan the development of a demonstration or model city.

The concept amounts to total urban renewal involving socio-economic aspects as well as substandard buildings.

AREA GROWS

The "Demonstration City" area has been extended on the east to Euclid avenue. Other boundaries are the Twin Cities airport on the north, Paw Paw avenue and Valley drive on the west and Britain avenue on the south.

An agreement to act jointly is expected to be presented to the Benton Harbor city commission Monday night and to the township board of trustees Tuesday night at their regularly scheduled meetings.

Planning consultants from the Harland Bartholomew & Associates were to take the finalized copy to their firm in St. Louis this weekend and return May 8 with the final form.

TELLS OF CONDITIONS

The present report includes a detailed outline of the Benton Harbor-Benton township area and lists its sociological and physical conditions.

If the report is approved, work can begin on plans to rehabilitate the worst and largest contiguous blighted area that includes no more than 20 per cent of the combined population. The area will be called "Demonstration City."

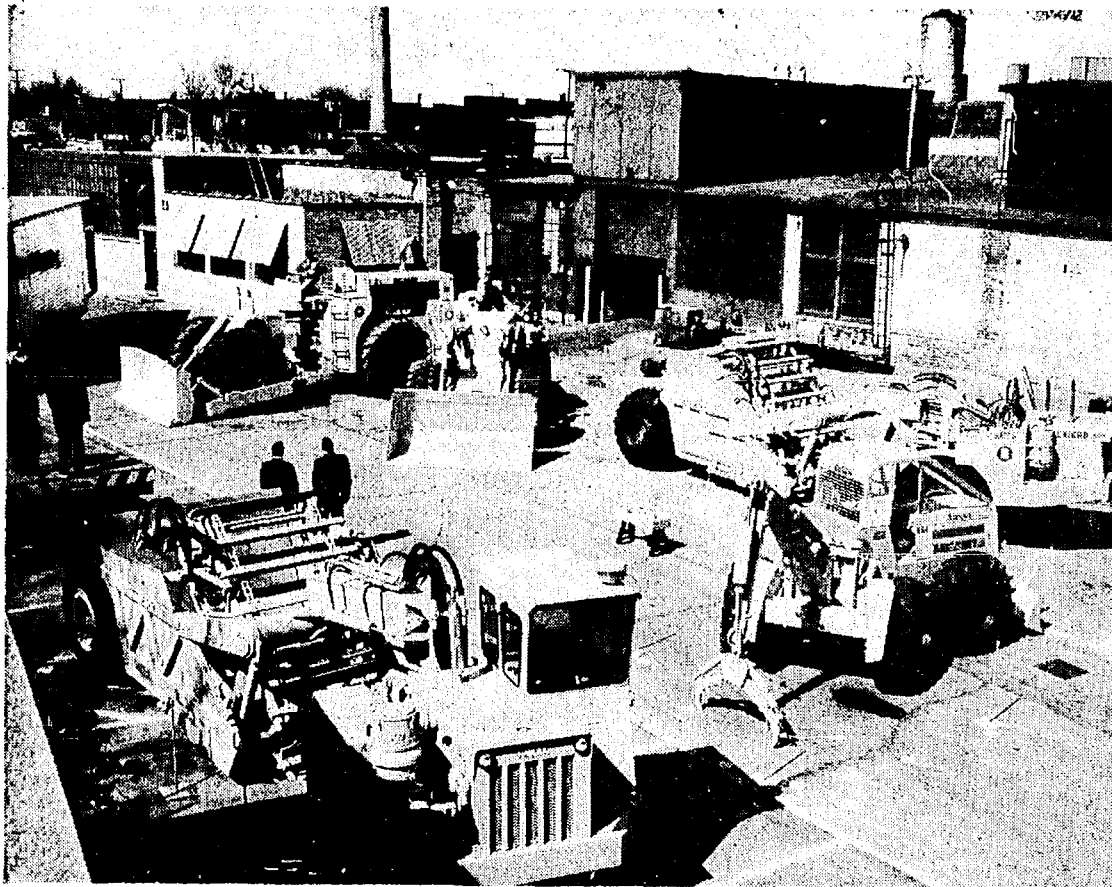

Working on the preliminary plans is a task force of four men from this area: George Welch, planning commissioner for Benton township; Don Stewart, Benton Harbor city manager; Leslie Cripps, Benton Harbor urban renewal director and Wayne Stevens, Benton township rehabilitation director.

Working with them have been Tom Fitzgerald and Robert Hoekstra from Harland Bartholomew & Associates.

Clark Equipment Proudly Shows Off Products

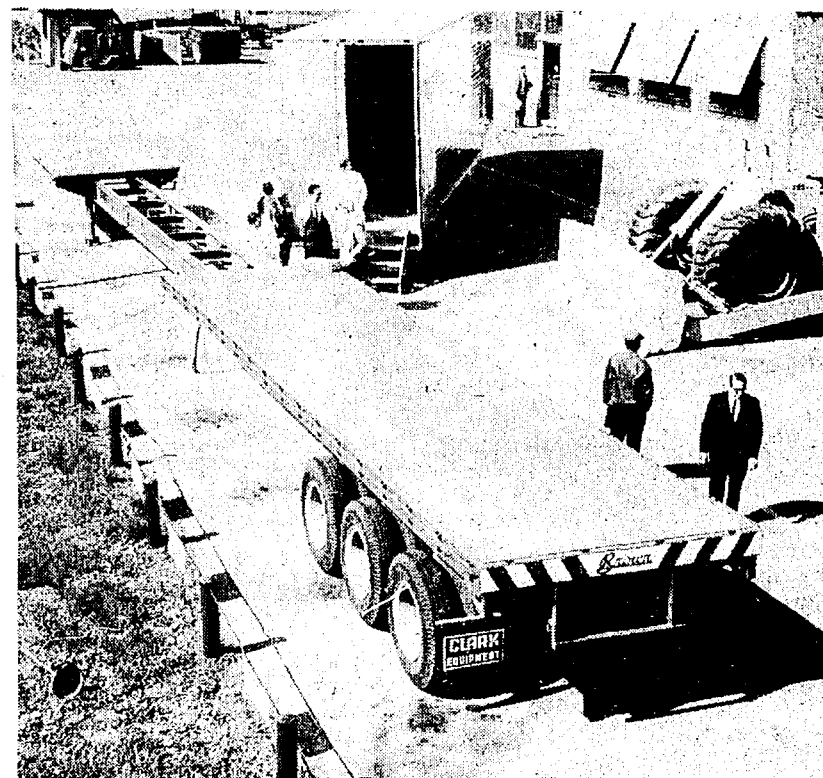

CLARK EQUIPMENT ON DISPLAY: Overhead shot of the parking lot near the entrance to the Clark Equipment Co. plant in Buchanan shows the dozers, front end loaders, fork lifts and trailers on display there during Clark's annual meeting program yesterday, today and tomorrow. The program was highlighted by the annual stockholders meeting yesterday. On display are Clark's newest products and the latest models in its already established lines. All Clark's divisions are represented. The displays will be open to the public from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. today and tomorrow.

ARTICULATED DOZER: Clark Equipment Co. officials decided to show off their best-looking secretaries along with one of their biggest "articulated" tractor-dozers in their display at the Buchanan plant. An articulated dozer actually has a two-piece structural frame hinged together between the two axles. This allows for greater maneuverability. This "Michigan" model 280, which stands 10 feet high, and a "Michigan" model 175 are the latest Clark tractor-dozers to be manufactured with the hinged frame feature. Both are manufactured at the Construction Machinery Division in Benton Harbor.

EXPANDABLE TRAILER: Stretched to its full 75 foot length, this Clark trailer can carry 100,000 pounds worth of cargo. It is manufactured by Clark's Brown Trailer Division in Michigan City, Ind. At its shortest length it is 45 feet long. To open it up all the truck driver need do is set the rear wheel brakes and slowly drive forward pulling the front section of the trailer out like a telescope.

Old Dispute Settled Amicably

Oronoko Township To Collect Levies

A amicable settlement was reached Friday in the three-year-old dispute between Andrews University and Oronoko township over taxation of certain university property.

Township officials agreed to recognize educational value of the disputed property and allow some exemption. University representatives indicated they recognized the property did also have commercial value and should be at least partially taxable.

A consent judgment, tentatively granted by Berrien Circuit Judge Chester J. Byrns, calls for payment by the university of $19,082.76 in back taxes, and sets up a schedule for taxation of property in question.

AGREE ON SCHEDULE

The schedule calls for 50 per cent taxation of the disputed university print shop, known as the "University Press;" 85 per cent taxation of the wood products shop; 75 per cent taxation of the book bindery, and 102 per cent taxation of the service center, which houses a food market, barber shop and beauty shop.

The taxation is only on land and buildings — not merchandise, equipment or other personal property — except in the case of the service center. Inventory of the service center will be taxed as personal property.

Though not part of the original dispute, 24 houses occupied by university employees will also be placed on tax rolls. The houses in subdivisions near university property, have added roughly $230,000 to the township's 1965 equalized valuation.

Oronoko Township Supervisor Robert Feather said the university agreed to placement of the houses on tax rolls, in connection with its policy of encouraging employees to become more and more a part of the community.

A key item in the judgment Feather added, was the stipulation that yearly reviews be made of university property use, and legislation effecting its tax standing. Changes in use of the property or state tax law could mean changes in the tax schedule, Feather said, and the yearly reviews should prevent similar disputes in the future.

The judgment also provides for transfer of taxes if the university should take over operation of a service station on university property. Taxes are now paid by the parent oil company, but if the facility is someday taken over by the university tax bills would be transferred.

BOTH SIDES PRAISED

Judge Byrns complimented attorneys and officials of both the university and the township for reaching the agreement. He said it shows considerable intelligent and diligent work on both sides and the result is very pleasing to the court. The township was represented by Berrien Springs Attorney Donald Dick. Attorney James Park of Lansing represented the university.

The judgment is still tentative, in that it has not yet been signed by Berrien Prosecutor John Hammond, who represented the county as an intervening defendant. Judge Byrns indicated Hammond must either sign the judgment or file written objections by 5 p.m. Monday. The state attorney general's office was also listed as an intervening defendant but withdrew from the case when agreement was reached.

It will include an area of service for the initial system and a schedule of expansion based on population and service area growth. All existing systems will be studied as well as previous plans prepared for various governmental units in the area.

the objectives as determined from the population and service area requirements. All existing facilities will be inventoried and reviewed as to capacities and extension potentials. Topography and land use will be studied for preliminary design of the water transmission and trunk sewer systems. Construction costs will be estimated for all facilities proposed.

3) Financial and administrative requirements. The study will include a preliminary discussion of the methods of financing these improvements as well as operating methods and costs and preliminary rate schedules for consumers. The study will be made by Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May of Ann Arbor.

The chief elected officials of the 14 governmental units and the board of directors of the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce comprise the inter-governmental council.

The 14 governmental units include the four cities of Benton Harbor, Coloma, St. Joseph and Watervliet; the two villages of Shoreham and Stevensville; and the eight townships of Benton, Coloma, Hagar, Lincoln, Royallton, St. Joseph, Sodus and Watervliet.

The inter-governmental council has been meeting approximately every quarter for the last 2 1/2 years. In June of 1965, the chief elected officials unanimously agreed the number one need for the Twin Cities area was sewer and water service. That fall, the governmental units and the Chamber of Commerce established a study team to investigate these services. The study team unanimously recommended that for the long run, the establishment of a county board of public works would best facilitate the provision of sewer and water services throughout the northern Berrien county area.

INTERVIEW ENGINEERS
This recommendation was submitted to the board of supervisors of Berrien county in January of 1966 and approved unanimously by the board of supervisors in May of last year. Following the election of members of the board of public works in August, the council requested the board of public works to interview various engineering firms and recommend back to the council the engineering firm to conduct the study and scope and cost of the feasibility study.

In January of this year, the board of public works recommended Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May as the recommended engineering firm with the scope of the study and cost as described above. In March, the chief elected officials agreed to seek their share of the cost of the study from their governmental units.

The committee members said Courthouse Building Superintendent Florian Reddig and Sheriff Henry Griese will inspect work done by the firm at the Calhoun county jail and then go over specifications with representatives from the firm before a final decision is made.

The committee did indicate, however, that the firm's bid appears satisfactory, and is more than $1,000 lower than its nearest competitor.

Other bids for the installed facility were from Sound Engineering of Benton Harbor, $8,995; Electronics LTO of New Troy, $6,110; Industrial Sound of South Bend, $8,568.73; and Boom Sound of Chicago, $10,236.

Donald C. Cook, president of I&M and its parent firm, American Electric Power Co., said in announcing the election that the creation of the executive vice presidency post was the result of the expanding responsibility of top management within the seven-state AEP System.

In other action by the I&M board of directors, John A. Tillinghast was elected a vice president of the company. Tillinghast is executive vice president construction and engineering of the American Electric Power Service Corporation. The Service Corporation furnishes the specialized administrative, accounting, engineering and other technical services of the six companies comprising the AEP System.

Car Crash Injuries For 5 Persons

Prominent Farmer Is Badly Hurt

A prominent Lake township dairyman, his wife and their daughter-in-law were hospitalized and another couple was injured in a two-car collision about 9:51 a.m. Friday at Cleveland avenue and Glenford road in Lincoln township.

In "poor" condition early today at Memorial hospital was Grover "Cleve" Shuler, 76, suffering a head laceration, skull fracture and rib fractures. His wife, Olive, 73, was listed in "fair" condition at Memorial with possible head injuries, a scalp laceration and broken ribs. Both are of route 1, Snow road, Baroda.

Their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ward (Shirley) Shuler, 36, Baroda, was listed in "fair" condition early today at Mercy hospital with a face cut, injured hip and chest pains.

SUFFER CUTS
The couple in the other car, Earl Ray Mitchell, 72, and his wife, Emma, 74, of route 1, Marris road, Baroda, were treated for cuts at Mercy and released.

Berrien county sheriff's deputies Bert Cooper and Cpl. Paul Mills said witnesses told them Mitchell's car ran through a stop sign at Cleveland and Glenford.

Deputies said Mitchell reported he didn't see the stop sign or the car Mrs. Ward Shuler was driving.

Study Bids On Jail Inter-Com

Lowest Price Is Set At $5,020

Replacement of the Berrien county jail intercoms, which proved totally useless during a recent jail break attempt, moved a step closer to reality Friday, as Berrien supervisors building committee members examined bids for a new system.

Apparent low bidder is All-Tronics, Inc. of Kalamazoo, which has offered a new system, complete with installation, for $5,020. The firm bid equipment alone at $3,239 and also offered an installation bid of $2,000 if equipment is purchased from another firm.

Committee members said Courthouse Building Superintendent Florian Reddig and Sheriff Henry Griese will inspect work done by the firm at the Calhoun county jail and then go over specifications with representatives from the firm before a final decision is made.

The committee did indicate, however, that the firm's bid appears satisfactory, and is more than $1,000 lower than its nearest competitor.

Other bids for the installed facility were from Sound Engineering of Benton Harbor, $8,995; Electronics LTO of New Troy, $6,110; Industrial Sound of South Bend, $8,568.73; and Boom Sound of Chicago, $10,236.
